

Job fair geared to veterans

Democrat and Chronicle

September 24, 2008

The Veterans Outreach Center will have more than 60 national and local employers on hand this afternoon for a job fair aimed at veterans.

The fair runs from 2 to 6 p.m. in the Eisenhart Auditorium of the Rochester Museum & Science Center, 657 East Ave.

"Employers increasingly cite the exceptional qualifications and strong work ethics they acquire by hiring veterans," said Peter Blind, the outreach center's vice president of workforce development and human resources.

Employers will be looking for entry-level, blue-collar and professional job candidates, the organization said. Representatives of state agencies serving veterans, such as the state Department of Labor, are also scheduled to be on hand.